

Unemployment:

Another important reason is unemployment which forces the parents to send their children to school as these poor people know that their children will remain unable to get a respectable position in society as they will not get a good job. Unemployment affects not just the person himself but also his/her family and in the long run the society where he lives.

Lack of Education:

Lack of education is one of the reason of child labour. The parents of these unfortunate children are usually illiterate. They do not have the ability to realise what they are doing with the future of their children. They push them out to face the hatred and indifference of people.

This kind of attitude with children destroys their personality and makes them submissive just like servants. It also damages their self esteem and forces them to bear the inhuman behavior of those who are higher in status to these children.

Overpopulation:

Pakistan is a populated country. More than 20 crore people are living in Pakistan. Over population is also one of the cause of child labour. Due to limited resources and growing need of food children are forced to work in different fields. They have to work for their family. They have to contribute with their parents to fulfill their basic needs.
